Southern Teachers Agency is assisting Presbyterian School in the search for their next Head of the Lower School. Founded in 1988, Presbyterian School serves 520 students in the early childhood class through the 8th grade. Dedicated to strengthening the lives of children and their families, the school provides an educational program of the highest quality in a Christian environment. Students are respected and treated as individuals of worth, while being encouraged to develop a sense of responsibility in relation to God, to themselves, to others, to their environment, and to the world in which they live.

The Head of the Lower School at Presbyterian School oversees the operation of all programs, including the curriculum and discipline, in the Alpha program (older two-year-olds) through the 4th grade, as well as matters and issues relating to the faculty and students of the division. Major responsibilities include fostering a collegial working environment in the Lower School by providing energy and vision to programs related to faculty development, program development, assessment of student learning, enriched student learning opportunities, technology for instruction, and academic collaboration amongst teachers in the Lower and Middle Schools. In terms of experience and credentials, the ideal candidate will have experience teaching in a lower school, have led a process of curricular evaluation and development, have served in a leadership capacity among colleagues, and have earned an advanced degree. Just as important, the new Head of Lower School should love children and be a listener, a builder, and a pastoral presence on campus.

Interested applicants should submit (preferably by e-mail) an STA application, letter of interest, current resume, list of references, and educational philosophy to
